

Getting started - a guide for those considering action

The first steps of initiating any change effort can be difficult, particularly when the benefits may initially be unclear and/or there is limited understanding of either the underlying requirements and possible solution(s), or just identifying any pathway forward. Below is a suggested approach to get your initiative underway.

Please note that these are indicative logical steps. They are not necessarily in order (may be iterative – depending where you are starting from) and/or may occur in parallel.

May be applied to Small Business, Medium to Large Enterprise, ISP/Telco or a Local/Central Government.

If you would like to discuss further, please email Grant Symons at contact@ipv6.org.nz